PSYCHOLOGICAL SEX DIFFERENCES TO BE DISCUSSED TUESDAY AT UM

MISSOULA--

"Psychological Sex Differences" will be the subject of the second in a series of lectures and discussions on women at 8 p.m. Tuesday (Oct. 5) in room 103 of the University of Montana Liberal Arts Building.

Mrs. Marty Hemingway, program coordinator and wife of Tuesday's guest lecturer, Dr. Peter W. Hemingway, an associate professor and acting chairman of the UM psychology department, said the free series of lectures, entitled "Reality and Reaction, A Symposium on Women," is an effort "to help participants understand women better." Mrs. Hemingway is an undergraduate student in social welfare at UM.

Tuesday's lecture is open to both men and women. The program will include a discussion period led by Dr. Hemingway.

Dr. Hemingway received his doctorate at Michigan State University and he taught at Southern Illinois University from 1960-64. He served as a research analyst and chief of operations research for the Michigan Department of Health before joining the Montana psychology staff in 1966.

Besides his regular academic and administrative activities, Dr. Hemingway is active in both the Missoula Open Door and the Crisis Center. He also is on the board of directors of the Western Montana Council on Alcohol and Drug-Related Problems.

University faculty members donate their time free of charge during the lecture series, which is sponsored by the UM College of Arts and Sciences.
